Patent final events for 2018: Thursday, June 28 and Friday, June 29. LP/ Olivier ArandelBy Gabriel JaquemetDe last year, students must pass four written tests and one oral exam at the end of the third year, representing half of their total score - the other half is obtained with continuous control throughout the year. The Written French Test (3h) focuses on an excerpt from literary text and image, and evaluates language skills (grammar - including rewriting, lexicon ...) and understanding and interpreting skills. Traditional dictation and writing work complete the test, which is the longest of 4 (Mathematics 2h - History geo 2h and sciences 1h). The final exams represent 400 points out of a total of 800 - the French test is evaluated at 100 points! The first part of the French test is based on the text of MarcelO Ayme's novel Uranus published in 1948 - a novel that focuses on postwar France and, above all, on cleaning. This text is accompanied by a Photogram from the film Uranus directed by Claude Berri in 1990, where we can see actor Gérard Depardieu.8 questions are asked of students to assess their understanding of the text such as Where is the scene? Who's Leopold? Why can the situation be surprising? Excuse your reply. (4 points) The university in Blémont was destroyed, the village had a requisition of some cafeterias to make them available to students, in the morning from 8:00 a.m. to 11 p.m. and in the afternoon from two to four. For coffee makers, it was just off peak hour and business has not suffered. Nevertheless, Leopold saw with a very bad eye that his establishment was thus discarded and Saint-Euloge's place then sounded thunder its inaccuracies. On the day students came to sit at café du Progrès for the first time, he hadn't moved his zinc, looking suspicious, and affecting to believe that one was angry at his bottles. But his curiosity, deceiving his resentfulness, quickly awoke and Leopold became the most attentive of students. The text of the Marcel Aymé Test was divided into two parts: grammar and understanding from 9:00.m to 10:30.m., then written from 10:45.m to 12:15.m. For grammar and understanding, the students worked on an excerpt from Marcel Aymé's text, Uranus, as well as photographs from a film of the same name directed by Claude Berri in the 1990s. First, they had to answer a number of questions about the text, including identifying elements of the comic book or analyzing the links between the characters. They then had to fill in grammatical questions, for example by identifying subordinate proposals for sentences or overwriting parts of text for indirect speech. The candidates had 1:10 to finish this game. They then proceeded to a dictation that lasted 20 minutes, and then to elaborate. For this last part, lasting one and a half hours, the candidates had a choice between two subjects: imagine continuing the uranium extract proposed in the first part of the test, or explaining what literary works they read in class or at home brought to them.
